DONAHEY ALSO DECLINES SPOT AS DELEGATE

Senator Wires Rejection After Refusing To Be "Stalking Horse" for Roosevelt.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21—Sen. A. Vic Donahey, who refused to be a "favorite son" candidate for president as a "stalking horse" for President Roosevelt, today declined to be a delegate to the Democratic national convention.

Donahey wired his refusal to National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, who stepped into the "favorite son" role which Donahey branded as "subterfuge."

Sawyer conferred with Donahey by telephone yesterday and said the senator "would go along" with the party organization's announced plan to support President Roosevelt for a third term, if he wants the nomination.

James W. Huffman, Columbus attorney and son-in-law of Donahey, said he believed Sawyer misunderstood and that Donahey never intended to be a delegate.

Donahey Consistent

He suggested that if Donahey could not conscientiously be a "stalking horse" candidate, he would be inconsistent in accepting a place on Ohio's convention delegation openly committed to Roosevelt although pledged nominally to Sawyer.

Sawyer, agreeing to become the Ohio "favorite son," said he was unconcerned over the talk about "stalking horses."

"I am just as much a bona fide candidate from Ohio as Mr. Robert A. Taft, the Republican favorite son candidate," Sawyer asserted, "and if by any chance he and I should be opposed to each other in the election, I will guarantee to take him away from his fishing expeditions and relegate him to the senate to which he was elected and in which he has spent very little time in the last five months doing what he is paid to do by the taxpayers."

"In announcing my candidacy," he added, "I, of course, will not undertake to mislead anybody. If Franklin D. Roosevelt is a candidate at any time during the deliberations of the Democratic national convention, I shall vote for him and shall expect the other members of the Ohio delegation to do likewise."

Blocks All Others

Sawyer promised that the Ohio party organization would deal in "devastating fashion" with outside candidates attempting to control the Ohio delegation's 52 convention votes.

Sawyer said a sub-committee would select a "second choice" candidate and complete a slate of 16 delegates-at-large and alternates within the next day or two.

In Cleveland, W. B. Gongwer, who was deposed by the state central committee as Cuyahoga county Democratic chairman, told his followers that former Mayor Ray T. Miller must be regarded as party head until the May 14 primary when new precinct committeemen, with the power to select a county chairman, will be elected.

HARDING DEBATERS WIN OVER FINDLAY

Both Local Teams Victorious in Contest Here.

Harding High school debaters won both decisions last night at the high school here when they met teams from Findlay High school.

Kathryn Stuckey and Philip Sensetta made up the Harding negative team and on the affirmative team were Eva Roberts and George Lane.

Debates were held simultaneously in east and west assembly halls, with Attorney James E. Reed as judge in east hall and attorney Ralph E. Carhart as judge in west hall.

The question debated was "Resolved, that the United States should own and operate the railroads."

Eugene Johnson and Janet Nichols presided as chairmen in the two halls.

The Findlay teams, Judson Allsop and Bill Evans, affirmative, and Carl Bartch and John Smith, negative, were accompanied by A. L. Maltoon, coach.

Harding teams, coached by T. D. Bain, will participate in a tournament Saturday at Shelby. Tentative arrangements have been made for a debate here some time next week with Marysville teams, according to Mr. Bain.

FINNS REPULSE FIERCE ATTACK

Russia Makes Heavy Assault Along Both Ends of Mannerheim Line.

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Feb. 21—Simultaneous Russian attacks on both ends of the Mannerheim line, throwing two Red army divisions against one sector alone, were repulsed in fighting that lasted far into the night, Finland reported today.

The Red army smashed at the western end of the isthmus defense line and at Taipale, the eastern sector where the two divisions launched their attack.

The twin offensives meant the Russians were trying to break through across nearly the entire width of the isthmus and that the battle still was most critical for Finland.

Finnish hopes were raised by the onset of a swirling blizzard which was expected to balk the Russian drive and further strengthen the defense.

Deny Koivisto Falls

Official Russian claims that the coastal fortress of Koivisto, western anchor of the Mannerheim line, had been captured, were denied by the semiofficial Finnish news agency.

The Finnish command's communique reported 17 Russian planes shot down in yesterday's widespread aerial fighting.

Soviet land attacks, centered on Finland's Mannerheim line of defenses across the isthmus, continued as Russian warplanes returning for the second successive day caused two air raid alarms in Helsinki. No bombings were reported.

An attack by two Russian divisions, "strongly supported by artillery and aircraft," said to have been repelled at Taipale on the eastern sector of the isthmus front as was continued hammering at the front's western end.

"Very many enemy tanks were destroyed," the Finns said, in the western sector near the Gulf of Finland, scene of some of the war's heaviest fighting which has brought the Russians within a few miles of Viipuri.

Soviet Losses Heavy

Enemy losses were described as heavy at Taipale where Finns said "the fighting raged fiercely until late at night."

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, 50 miles from the isthmus front, there was relative quiet on the sector where Finland two days ago reported wiping out a Russian division, but "a few enemy strong points were captured."

Approximately 800 Soviet Russian warplanes dropped an almost continuous hail of explosives on beleaguered Finland early today in the largest mass bombing attack in aviation history.

The semi-official Finnish news agency dienied a Russian army communique that the Reds had captured the Finnish coastal fortress of Koivisto, western anchor of the Mannerheim line on the Kalelian isthmus.

Apparently attempting a knockout blow from the skies, the Soviet aerial armada ranged southern and central Finland through the night and into the early morning hours, sending bombs crashing onto cities, railways and roads.

Nothing in the World's war to date approaches the power of the Russian aerial offensive.

Germany made the World war's largest bombing raids with planes that did not exceed the average speed of the Soviet ships in the night of Oct. 6, 1915.

40 BOMBS SET TOWN ON FIRE

Town Near Finnish Border Burning After Raid by Seven Planes.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 21—Seven Russian bombing planes today showered between 30 and 40 bombs on the Swedish frontier village of Pajala, setting many buildings afire but causing no casualties, dispatches from the border region reported.

Four buildings in Pajala, a village of 3,000 inhabitants five miles from the Finnish frontier, were destroyed and others set afire by the raiders, who descended to 3,000 feet before unloading their bomb cargo.

Although the bombing was generally regarded in Stockholm as accidental it added new complications to Sweden's difficulties over the matter of aid to Finland.

It was expected to bring a sharp protest to Moscow and further stimulate the Swedish "Activist" campaign for direct military help to the embattled Finns.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said half the town was burning.

Many terrified inhabitants fled to the fields, others crouched in their homes.

Bombs Fall Near Church

Several bombs fell within 100 feet of the Pajala church where some villagers were huddled.

When the attack ended the Soviet planes followed the frontier about 20 miles before disappearing over Finland.

Accounts attributed to eyewitnesses said 29 explosive bombs fell near Pajala church, which, however, was not damaged, while an undetermined number of incendiary bombs fell in the center of the village.

Among the buildings hit was an old hospital from which patients had been moved recently to a new building. One bomb struck the gymnasium of a school building and penetrated to the basement without exploding.

Pajala's telephone operator, Miss Astrid Perttu, related that at 12:15 p. m. she received a call from a border station stating that foreign planes were observed. Half an hour later a call came from Kengis village, near the border, stating that seven Russian planes were proceeding into Swedish territory at high speed.

Sticks To Post

"I immediately informed the nearest military commander and then went to work to inform people and answer calls," said Miss Perttu.

Although a building only 100 yards away was struck by a bomb and burned to the ground, Miss Perttu stuck to her post throughout the raid.

Pajala is on the Tornea river near the Swedish Finnish border, about 100 miles north of Haparanda.

Five miles from the Finnish border, Pajala's residents had no formal air raid precautions. When they found themselves the target of the surprise attack, Aftonbladet said, some fled terror stricken to the fields, while others remained in the scant security of their homes.

The town was reported still burning in the afternoon. The Swedish government was said to have ordered an immediate investigation.

MT. GILEAD PASSES SPECIAL TAX LEVY

3.5 Mill Proposal Carries by 589 to 16 Vote.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Feb. 21—The voters of Mt. Gilead yesterday approved, almost unanimously, a 3.5 mill tax levy for the municipality's operating expenses and for rebuilding and repair of the Mt. Gilead sewage treatment plant. The unofficial count was 589 in favor of the levy and 16 opposed to it.

The levy, to run for two years, is expected to produce approximately $7,000 a year, members of council have estimated. Last November a two-mill levy for operating expenses was defeated by a small margin.

Approval of the levy, officials said, will make it possible to install a new chemical treatment system and to make extensive repairs at the sewage plant, in the event the levy had not passed the plant would have to be closed down.

Report Rumanian Ban on Plane Oil Sale To Nazis

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Feb. 21—Pressure by Britain and France was reported authoritatively today to have led to a Rumanian government decree banning the shipment of aviation oil to Germany.

The reported decree is in direct contradiction with an arrangement made with Germany's trade envoy, Dr. Karl Clodius, a few weeks ago by which Rumania agreed to increase her shipments of aviation oil provided that increased export taxes were paid.

LONDON, Feb. 21—The tug-o-war between the allies and Germany over Rumanian oil for the machines of war has been resolved to the satisfaction of Great Britain and France, an informed source indicated today.

Allied satisfaction was said to spring from assurance that Rumania would not discriminate in favor of Germany.

Rumania's reply to Britain's expression of concern last month over the functions of the new Rumanian oil control board has not been published. The board holds dictatorial power over oil production, including that of British and French-owned properties.

However, informed quarters here gave the impression that the reply removed fears that Germany would be favored over the British and French.

Establishment of the control board had raised such doubts in London that officials reconsidered the whole question of British and Rumanian trade, giving rise to published assertions that Britain secretly had stopped all exports to Rumania pending a satisfactory settlement.

The reports of a halt in exports to Rumania, however, never were confirmed officially.

In another stab at British shipping and air defenses, German bombers ranged along the east coast yesterday. Attacks were reported off the coasts of Northumberland, Norfolk, Lincolnshire and Suffolk. Anti-aircraft gunfire was heard even on the outskirts of London; machine-gun fire was heard in Essex, and there were widespread air alarms.

Damage inflicted by the German airmen on ships still was unreported by the British today, but in Berlin DNB, official German news agency, announced the day's operations include the sinking of two British minelayers and one armed merchant ship.

Modern Methods To Be Theme of Cooking School

She hasn't a gingham apron to her name!

But she is planning to be one of the "early bird" pupils at each of the four free sessions of The Marion Star's cooking school, starting Tuesday, Feb. 27, in The Star auditorium.

Today's homemaker may do her work in shorts or slacks, without an apron in sight, for kitchen costumes have been modernized to keep pace with other comforts. Although her working kit has changed as radically as her convenient, streamlined kitchen, The Star has been tipped off that today's homemaker still is old-fashioned in her zest for experimenting with new menu thrills, and in her frank delight when approving diners demand a second helping.

Mrs. Smith

That belief is backed up by Mrs. V. Elsner Smith, the nationally-known authority on foods and home management, who will be the "first lady" of the cooking school.

Speaking from the standpoint of many years of friendly contact with representative women in her audiences from coast to coast, Mrs. Smith says: "Admire the modern home-maker? That doesn't begin to express the enthusiasm I feel as I meet her in the north, south, east and west. And I am not referring exclusively to brides, or young married women. Today's home-maker is willing to learn. The former settled attitude was 'You can't teach me anything. The very idea, I've kept house for 25 years.'

"That slightly hostile, 'You can't teach me anything' state of mind is as out-of-date as a coal scuttle in the kitchen.

Questions are an important part of each cooking school program. Mrs. Smith insists that she gets a real thrill from answering them, whether they deal with the sorrows of soggy piecrust, all-wet custard, or laundry woes.

Altmeyer Urges States Liberalize Job Insurance Pay

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—Arthur J. Altmeyer, social security board chairman, declared today it was imperative that the states overhaul and liberalize their unemployment insurance systems.

Altmeyer recommended that the waiting period for benefits be cut to one week, that payments be made for at least 16 weeks a year, and that states with large surplus insurance funds pay two-thirds of the weekly wage—at least $20.

He made public his views in the Social Security Bulletin, amplifying the board's stand previously outlined in its annual report to congress.

Altmeyer also proposed that the minimum benefits paid by the states should be at least $5 a week, that partial unemployment benefits should be paid in all states, and that eligibility regulations should be simplified with a view to more prompt payment.

His suggestions are not to be considered the ideal for jobless insurance standards, he said, but something to be given immediate consideration.

"States with sufficient reserves and current income (from social security taxes) may well consider making their benefits still more adequate," he added.

VOTERS DEFEAT LONG DYNASTY

Late Huey's Brother Loses to Reform Candidate in Louisiana.

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21—The Huey P. Long political dynasty, born of 12 years of dictatorial violence, died peacefully by ballot yesterday after one of the longest and bitterest election campaigns in Louisiana's history.

Voters in the Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary swept to defeat Gov. Earl K. Long, brother of the "Kingfish" and titular leader of the machine, and nominated Attorney Sam Jones of Lake Charles to the office.

Jones, a newcomer to politics, pledged himself to restore democracy to Louisiana, regain much of the millions of dollars he said administration office holders stole from the state, and jail those found guilty of graft and corruption.

The machine rout appeared complete with Jones' slate of secondary state officers, engaged in the runoff, going in without a break, together with a new anti-machine legislature, and possibly an anti-machine state central committee.

Unofficial Returns

Unofficial returns from 1,508 of the state's 1,703 precincts gave Jones 258,816 votes and Long 238,602, a lead of 20,124 votes for Jones.

Nomination in overwhelmingly Democratic Louisiana is tantamount to election. Jones will take office May 14.

It was the first time since 1928, when Huey himself was elected governor, that the Long administration had been whipped.

The martial air, characteristic of the Long rule, prevailed yesterday as the governor kept the state's 3,500 national guardsmen poised for duty but, aside from several fist fights, there were few disturbances.

Jones early today accepted the victory plaudits of his supporters with the advice that the "job is not yet done."

In a radio address he said:

"Permit me to thank you for the magnificent support you have given me. Last minute returns with approximately 400,000 votes cast, indicate I've been elected governor."

Long Still Hopeful

Long said at the executive mansion in Baton Rouge he still believed complete returns would show him the victor.

Nominated with Jones were his candidates for lieutenant-governor, attorney general and superintendent of public education and a new anti-machine legislature.

Particular interest was manifested in the attorney-generalship. Apparent winner of the job was Eugene Stanley, former district attorney of New Orleans who resigned when Huey's servile legislature passed laws which stripped the district attorney of power. Stanley has promised prosecution of all office holders guilty of venality.

When Huey was shot and killed in the skyscraper capitol in Baton Rouge in September, 1935, he had built the first complete dictatorship ever set up in the United States.

Unchallenged in Louisiana, he was sweeping to power in the nation and throwing fright into the major political parties with a threat to seek the presidency on his "Share-the-Wealth" platform, when a bullet ended his life.

Feb. 28 Is Application Deadline For Persons Seeking Work on U. S. Census

Persons seeking positions as enumerators for the 1940 census of population, agriculture and housing, must obtain application blanks at district census office in the McNeal-Wolford building on West Center street by Feb. 28, Mrs. Harriet B. Stuart, district supervisor, announced today.

Task of taking the census of population, agriculture and housing will begin April 2, with approximately 120,000 enumerators assigned to the work in United States. Estimates of the number of persons needed to carry on the work here were not available today, but Mrs. Stuart pointed out that considerably more will be employed when this phase of the census begins.

At present 10 enumerators are working in the Marion district, composed of Marion, Crawford, Morrow, Wyandot, Hardin and Hancock counties, taking a census of business and industrial concerns. This work will continue until April and at the same time groundwork will be laid for other phases of the enumeration.

Applicants for the positions of enumerators must first obtain application blanks through the district office. Persons living in Marion may apply at the office and those in outlying sections or surrounding counties may submit requests by mail. When the applications are filed, however, it will be necessary for the applicants to appear in person, Mrs. Stuart reported.

The population, housing and agriculture enumeration will not begin before April 2 and census officials have warned the public against persons posing as enumerators. Any persons seeking information as census employes before that date, with the exception of those working on business and manufacturing census, are not bona fide census takers, Mrs. Stuart said.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Medicine's Early Start

I have been on a sightseeing trip in Mexico. All my sightseeing jaunts include observations on the medical life of a country—past and present—and I found a great deal of material in Mexico.

In Mexico City is the oldest hospital on the North American continent—the Hospital of Jesus of Nazareth. It was founded by Cortez, the conqueror of Mexico in 1524. Built on the site of the meeting of Montezuma and Cortez, it has served both the native Indian population and the Spanish settlers alike since the day of its origin, over 400 years ago.

The institution was first called the Hospital of Our Lady of Conception, from the church of which it was a part. The church is still standing alongside the hospital. The ashes of Cortez once reposed in the church. Cortez directed in his Last Will and Testament that the hospital and church should be finished at his cost. The hospital has been maintained by Cortez descendants to this day.

The interior courts of the hospital are fine examples of Spanish Colonial architecture.

On a plaque on the wall at the bottom of the staircase the inscription states that two physicians, Don Juan de Correra and Don Andres Martinez, performed human anatomies (dissections for educational purposes, beginning in 1643, certainly the earliest medical instruction given in North America.

Leading Merchant Sees Continued Upswing in U. S. Retail Business

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—Louis E. Kirstein, who rose from an errand boy's job to become one of the nation's leading merchants, expressed belief today that the upward swing in the retail trade business would continue this year, provided distributors stood guard against price increases and "regimentation" of the people's economic needs.

"It's absolutely to the interests of the retailer—and this is not altruism, but good business — to prevent sharp increases in prices," declared Kirstein, chairman of the American Retail Federation's board of trustees, and vice president of William Filene's sons, big department store.

Optimistic, But Qualified

His opinion on the future of retail trade—optimistic, but qualified by several provisions—was advanced in an interview on the basis of figures showing the returns in 1939 "the best in several years," with winter sales past the midpoint, and with the Easter shopping just about to begin.

Kirstein asserted that retailers "of all kinds have a stake in preserving free economic and political institutions."

He declared that if the public is not able to satisfy its wants, or if it is regimented politically, or economically, the retailer becomes "a transmission belt for the dictator" and their "boast of being the purchasing agent for the public is a sham and a delusion.

"When democracy perishes, so does our economic function."

Kirstein's merchandising career began as the purchasing agent of the war department of all army uniforms. He has been a vice president of Filene's since 1911.

For an interviewer, he stressed the dangers of a war boom and of speculative buying, the ability of this country's manufacturers to prevent a scarcity demand by producing "more than enough" to satisfy consumer needs, and the tendency of sales of "luxury" goods to fall when prices increase.

War Stimulates Industry

Kirstein said the war had stimulated activity in some types of industry, with a corresponding beneficial effect upon retail trade, adding, however, that "we were already beginning to be more prosperous before the war situation became critical in September. We were already on the road to better business.

"Violent increases in prices," he said, "reduce the standard of living. People buy what they need, instead of what they want. But we should resist with all our influence and power any abnormal forces making for rising retail prices.

"It is true that a merchant can hardly help making money for a short time on a rising market, but no merchant who really understands his business can afford to be temporarily prosperous at the expense of the general standard of living.

"That is why, in times like these especially, we, as merchants, must keep one eye on the price structure, for our future prosperity depends as much on that as on anything else."

Pilots Likely To Take Brunt of "Total" War Threatening To Come in Spring

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—If ominous threats evoked by the Altmark incident crystallize in "total war" in the air this spring, military students will have a chance to see whether nations can train men to fly as rapidly as armed conflict can kill them.

France lost 61 per cent of its effectives during the war of 1914-18 in bearing the brunt of the air fighting on the western front.

Up to February in the current war, England's royal air force had listed 663 men dead or missing in five and a half months of extremely restricted fighting. Probably two thirds of them were commissioned and non-commissioned pilots, the rest enlisted men.

Neither Germany nor France announces its air force deaths, but it is a fair assumption that in the bitter, if sporadic, fighting against England, Germany's losses have approximated its enemy's.

Casualties Would Mount

Those are casualties in only touch-and-go fighting. What they would amount to in a "total war" is, of course, problematical. But they unquestionably would be higher, and pilots today are not replaced so easily as they were when 140 miles an hour was super-fast.

In the war of 1914-18, men were sent aloft often after only two or three hours instruction. Today, at least three months of training is necessary to indoctrinate a novice properly in the art of flying 300-mile-an-hour bombers and pursuits capable of burst of 400 miles an hour.

The United States army does not consider a man a good airman until he has had nine months of instruction.

The long period of training required, plus rigid physical qualifications, has made adequate personnel one of the biggest problems facing the air forces of the world's major powers, whether at peace or at war, in this era of vast air fleets.

Planes Useless Without Pilots

Airplanes, turned out by the thousands, are useless unless enough pilots are available to fly them.

There is little question that Germany had the jump on France and England in flying personnel before the present war started. As far back as 1937, news correspondents in Berlin reported the Reich had an air force of more than 100,000 men, about a tenth of whom were pilots.

Last year, more than 100,000 members of the "Hitler Youth" organization were earmarked for aviation careers.

Last summer, France had laid plans for an air army of 80,000 men. The program was slow in coming to fruition. England's goal was 100,000. In each instance, about a tenth of the number was designated as pilots. Programs of both countries were accelerated at the start of the war.

Between them, England and Germany lost 32,500 men from their air forces in the war of 1914-18, all of whom were fliers—commissioned or non-commissioned pilots and enlisted men.

As an index to the need of a warring nation for manpower in the air, the United States army in peacetime plans an air force of 49,000 men, including about 4,500 pilots, but the middle of next year.

Admission will be free, but will be by ticket only until 8. After 8 if any seats are available they will be free to the public. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the band at the high school office or from Mr. Huffman. Doors will open at 7:15.

A voluntary offering will be taken for the benefit of the high school music department.

Playing of the school song, "The Red and Black," which was composed by Richard Myers, a Harding graduate, will open the program. The second number will be four movements from "The Atlantis Suite," by Safranek. The first half of the program will close with Weber's overture, "Peter Schmoll."

In the intermission a string quartet composed of Gene Smithson, Gloria Rosenberger, Bob Smith and George Lane, will play "Allegro Moderato" from the Haydn quartet, Opus 76, No. 3.

The band's first number for the second part of the program will be an overture, "Light Cavalry," by Suppe. The next number will be a Sousaphone solo, "Pomposo," by Hayes, played by Norman Barnhart.

After the band plays "The Wedding of the Winds," a waltz by Hall, the audience will be asked to rise and sing Berlin's stirring "God Bless America," to the accompaniment of the band.

The program will close with the band playing "The Star Spangled Banner," arranged by Fillmore, and "Taps," arranged by Fillmore.

Planning Comes to Politics

THREE things in the Republican program committee's report command attention. First is the nature of the report as a preliminary party platform—a review of party thought that inevitably will be reflected in the platform itself when it is drawn. National politics deserve this kind of long-range planning.

Second is emphasis on a change in political conditions that has been taking place so quietly, so subtly that many have failed to grasp its meaning. The Democratic party, having been in power for eight years, has become the stand-pat party, opposed to change. In 1940 it is the Republican party which embraces the dynamic ideal—the let's-do-something appeal used so successfully by the Democrats in 1932.

Third is adroit handling of the foreign policy question. By approving the Roosevelt administration's foreign policy, the Republican program committee has taken a step to make domestic policy the only election issue. The campaign will be fought over questions of what has been done and is being done in the United States, instead of what is going to be done abroad.

As befits the opposition, the Republican report calls for extensive revision and improvement of many existing laws being defended by the party in power. Democrats will not miss the point that many of the changes reflect attitudes inside the party. The report is a criticism of the New Deal; it might have been compiled by a group of Democrats. It challenges many beliefs that Democrats themselves, have challenged.

Best of all, it suggests that the 1940 campaign be lifted to a plane of "honest debate." It is not enough any more for the New Deal to ask for votes on the basis of what the last Republican administration didn't do. It is time to account for what the New Deal didn't do in its eight years of trial and error.

Decline of the Primary

SEN. DONAHEY'S observations on decline of the presidential primary in Ohio in connection with the "Roosevelt Forever!" movement reflect the disappointment of many who thought, as the senator did, that letting voters have a hand in the nomination of candidates would be a lasting reform. They reckoned without the well known willingness of voters to let politicians run the show.

There were instances, of course, where improvement was made. But in 1940 presidential primaries will play a minor role in selection of candidates. For one thing, primaries will be held in less than one-third of the states. For another, in the states holding them the results will be inconclusive.

Most delegates in New York, for instance, will be chosen without announcing their preferences. In Illinois, Sen. Taft and Sen. Vandenberg will not run against Mr. Dewey. In Ohio, as Sen. Donahey makes plain in his refusal to act as "favorite son," Democrats are pledged to support Franklin D. Roosevelt, who hasn't even filed for delegates.

High-water mark of the presidential primaries was 1916, when 24 states representing almost 70 per cent of the population used them. Since then the system has been abandoned or invalidated in nine states. In the remaining 15 the results will be vague enough not to interfere with convention strategies next June and July.

Not Even As a Gift

DILEMMAS like that of Ocean county, N. J., which doubts if it wants the late John D. Rockefeller's 500-acre estate for nothing, write interesting footnotes to contemporary history. By accepting the property as a gift the county would lose $11,000 that must be paid on it in taxes each year to keep the county from getting it by legal processes.

Furthermore, by the same token, valuable properties are becoming increasingly harder to sell. They are a luxury that only the very wealthy can afford to maintain. As the older J. P. Morgan is supposed to have said when asked about the upkeep of a yacht, "If you have to worry about the upkeep you shouldn't be thinking about owning one."

Even the Indians would be scared stiff if someone tried to give the United States back to them now. They couldn't afford to take it. As Sitting Bull say, "Wampum swamp 'um."

Part of the Sport

ALL this deep-stuff speculation about the country's No. 1 Fisherman is strictly peach fuzz. The country's other fishermen know exactly what it means when a brother acts "mysterious."

He has found a place where the big ones will bite on a bare hook and doesn't want to share his secret. If someone pulls up alongside Mr. F in a cruiser the next few days and drawls, "Catchin' anything?" he will be greeted with an icy stare and a non-committal, "Nothin' much."

That's fishing—every man for himself.

News Behind the News

State Department Receives New Reports on Breakdown of Internal Economy in Japan.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—A fresh inside report on the crumbling internal economy of Japan has reached the front offices of the state department. It pierced the censorship and cannot be made public but may explain a lot of coming events here including State Secretary Hull's disinclination to approve the proposed senate embargo.

Gravest Japanese deficiency of the moment is in coal. Leading manufacturing plants in the three largest industrial cities had to be shut down 14 hours a day for two weeks recently. A long drouth cut hydro-electric power production in half, causing industry to need 2,000,000 more tons of coal annually, and this cannot be obtained. The miners are away to war in China and Manchurian plants are increasingly absorbing production there.

Paul Mallon

The deficiency may or may not be enough to break Japan. The report does not say. But Mr. Hull may find ground in it for assuming a position against the embargo, thus leaving the United States free to impose countervailing duties and further import restrictions as diplomatic necessity arises.

Leader

Senator Vandenberg was regarded as likeliest choice for the Republican presidential nomination among national committeemen and women who should know best.

Prevailing Vandenberg opinion among them was shown at a dinner-table consensus of a dozen newsmen, some one of whom had talked with each member. But the committee crowd was not at all sure the Michigan senator would get it. They were afraid of Dewey, whom they call "the Dick Tracy candidate." They reported the people in their localities seemed less afraid of Dewey's youth and total lack of executive experience than they were.

Noblesse Oblige

The wise political men of the congressional cloakrooms accept General Farley's entry in Massachusetts as intervention for Roosevelt, and are telling this story:

The Democratic chairman is supposed to have gone to the President and said substantially: "I see you are not entered in Massachusetts."

The President is being quoted as replying:

"I don't know anything about it, Jim."

"Well, you can't beat somebody with nobody. Do you object if I enter?"

"Why no, Jim, go right ahead."

The talk, not substantiated by direct confirmation, is nevertheless apparently entitled to credence in view of the similar inference in the published telegram by Massachusetts state chairman, William H. Burke.

Careful

Senator Wheeler's announcement that he wanted no part pro or con, of the third term fight in the primaries, is being misinterpreted as a break from his friend, Jack Garner, the vice president. Wheeler made the decision merely to play his maximum chances. He has not sufficient strength to contest successfully against the President, and did not want to cast away the nomination by a hopeless contest.

Garner and Wheeler are still friends, although their political amicability has been greatly overemphasized. Recent published quotes implying Mr. Garner might eventually favor Wheeler were based on a flippant conversation between the V. P. and the senator a year ago.

Dickering

New Wagner bill to set up a strong judicial mediation service for capital and labor is an administration move—but how far it will go, nobody knows.

Senator Wagner may have pushed it up front at this time to shoo some flies off his own baby, NLRB. Whether the measure will be pressed for adoption this session is yet undecided. Some New Deal politicians want to throw all labor issues over until after election if they can get away with it.

Author of the Wagner idea is Dr. John R. Steelman, strongly successful director of the existing conciliation service in the labor department. His department is recognized everywhere as the most efficient of administrative bureaus. No one will oppose the needed Steelman project, but Wagner's plan apparently is to keep NLRB functioning simultaneously without material change—which stand may complicate the outcome of the legislation.

Five Common Fallacies Regarding the Peace That Will Follow This War Listed.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT IS inordinately difficult, I find even to begin thinking about the peace that is to follow this war. There must be others who are laboring under the same difficulty. There must be others who, when they broach the problem, are asbaffled as if in a dark jungle they had come face to face with an angry elephant, and were then told that it was their duty to tame the elephant.

How does one begin to tame an angry elephant? Does one climb a tree and from a safe height deliver an oration on the bad habits of elephants. Does one tickle the elephant's snout and offer him a handful of hay every time he gets really angry? Or would it perhaps be better to retire from his presence and take a course in elephant taming, a course which any really up-to-the-minute college would no doubt be glad to offer?

For myself, I do not know how to tame an elephant, or how to abolish war and establish perpetual peace. But for more than 20 years I have been worrying about the peace that was signed at Versailles, and have been criticizing it and listening to plans for reconstructing it and going as a newspaper man to conferences which were revising it. The only thing I know for certain about the next peace is that I know no one who can sit down at his desk and devise a plan which will tell the survivors of this war just what they ought to do.

So it has dawned upon me that a more modest approach to this great question might at this time prove to be more useful, and that before beginning to think about the settlement of this war it might be better to think about how one thinks about the settlement of such a war. In this way one might eventually discover how to take hold of the problem, where and how to begin to think, about such a problem.

I shall not start, therefore, with a set of principles for making peace, nor with a plan and a program, but with a summary of what I believe are fallacies into which we tend to fall when we think about making peace.

1. The Fallacy of Our Own Eventual Omnipotence

When we are under the spell of this fallacy, we imagine ourselves, sometimes crudely but more often subtly and unconsciously, as playing the part of the victorious masters of the world. We are Hitler in his dream castle, only we are still our own noble selves. We draw frontiers on maps. We make combinations of people. We dispose grandly and easily of the lives, the fortunes, the wishes and the prejudices of mankind. The Primaries will be held on the dates shown in black states. Conventions or committees will choose delegates in white states. Where a state is black-and-white, Democrats will hold a primary, Republicans will not. The political parties in Arkansas and Georgia have not decided what they will do.

Figures show the number of delegates each state has to each national convention. New York has eight delegates-at-large, named by the state committees, in addition to the 90-odd in each party to be voted upon in the primaries.

So far only two states—Illinois and Wisconsin—have primaries scheduled that will be clear cut tests. The names of Roosevelt and Garner have been entered in each state's Democratic primary.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
A. P. Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Significant among the political signs of the times is the fact that the presidential primary tussles are crashing Page One in midwinter—and in competition with war news.

The front-page positions of headlines like "Dewey Enters Illinois Race," and "Farley Slate in Massachusetts," may mean that rank-and file voters will have a chance to play an active, practical role in selecting nominees for president.

If the "average voters" do, it will be the first time that John Q. and Mary Jane Citizen have definitely participated in the presidential preliminaries on a nationwide basis in 28 years. For it was in 1912 that the popular voice played hob with Republican primaries and gave Teddy Roosevelt's backers the courage to set up their candidates as an independent.

Voters' Influence Vague

Before 1912, and since, the influence of the rank and file in the trial heats has been indirect, vague, inconclusive.

The reason for their impotence during the candidate hunting phase of presidential politics lies in the fact that the democratic way of nominating and electing is unsuited to smoking out candidates for office.

It works smoothly only after the candidates have been picked and the final race is on. For instance, you can't actually draft a man who doesn't want to be drafted because, in so doing, you deprive him of the liberty to run or not to run, a liberty guaranteed by the democratic form of government.

That automatically leaves the selection of candidates to political parties, and, more especially, to the people who make a profession of running parties.

Caucuses Used First

Party leaders first adopted the secret caucus system because it was already in practical use as a town-council method of picking candidates. Out of the national party caucuses in Washington candidates suddenly and mysteriously appeared. Voters had no choice but to pass on the caucus selections of both parties.

About 1825, the caucus died the death of a political villain and the convention system supplanted it. In the convention, the parties were supposed to select their candidates openly. But soon the evils of the caucus appeared in the form of the "smoke-filled back room," and cliques were charged with manipulating conventions like Punch and Judy shows.

Around the turn of the century the political primary idea evolved, almost spontaneously, as a remedy for the evils in the convention system. Under the primary system, the idea was to control political parties under state laws, and make them quasi-public organizations.

Primary A Progressive Idea

But from the very start, the primary movement was doomed to failure as a nationwide institution. In the first place, each state has a right to do as it pleases about political parties, and in the second place, professional politicians usually distrust gusts of popular opinion. They fought the primary idea from the word go.

The result: only 14 states, albeit the more populous ones, have presidential primaries. In three others, Arkansas, Georgia, and Alabama, the voters may have a primary if the powers that be in the parties will let them. Alabama leaders have decided to hold a primary this year. The others are making up their minds.

That means 15 states — Alabama, California, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, will elect their candidates to the national conventions. However, eight of the Illinois and New York delegates are picked by party committees. The District of Columbia Democrats also elect their delegates, but the Republicans do not.

Those 15 states will have a total of 492 delegates at the 1940 Democratic convention out of 1,100 and 460 delegates to the Republican convention out of 1,000—less in each case than a majority.

All except three of the 15—Alabama, Florida, and New York—also give their voters a chance to directly express a preference for President, in addition to electing delegates of known preference. But the delegates aren't very seriously bound by that preference.

LIPPMANN

underlying assumption is that we are in a position to impose upon mankind the constitution which we have decided is good for them.

This is, however, sheer fantasy—in Hitler's case a lunatic fantasy, in our own case perhaps only an amiable daydream.

2. The Belief in the Miracle of Universal Consent.

Many attractive schemes, of which the Kellogg Pact to Outlaw War is a classic example, are based on the assumption that all men will not only acknowledge the same principles of conduct (which is just conceivable) but that all men will draw the same practical conclusions from the principles. This is not, I think, conceivable—even theoretically; in practical affairs to act as if it were possible is to ignore the problem of war and peace and then to call this ignorance a solution.

For the problem is not how men should act if they were all in fundmental agreement; if they were in fundamental agreement, there would be no problem and, therefore, no need of a solution. The problem is how to obtain more agreement than there is, and how to get on without wrecking our civilization by the conflicts which arise out of disagreement.

3. The Fallacy of the Exaggerated and Isolated Cause

In this category are to be found all the plans which isolate some one issue as the "fundamental" and "underlying" cause of the whole disorder. There are innumerable cults, each with its separate diagnosis: the cause we are told is lack of raw materials, or lack of living space, or lack of colonies, or lack of national self-determination.

When this fallacy is disinterested, it arises from intellectual specialization: we all like to think that the most important things in the world are the things we know about the world. When this fallacy is not disinterested, as is often the case, it is a device of the propagandist.

4. The Fallacy of Over-Valuing Our Good Intentions.

The problem of war and peace has baffled the greatest minds for more than two thousand years; we must not, therefore, imagine that to hate war and desire peace, however passionately, is a qualification for solving the problem. Thus we all desire good health, except the morbid minority who enjoy their bad health. But our desire to be healthy does not make us competent physicians; and if the desire becomes a pre-occupation, we are hypochondriacs, sick with the fear of being sick, or faddists who favor a new diet and a new nostrum and a new expensive quack every third week.

But there is one fallacy which is even more confusing than any of these: It is

5. The Fallacy of Not Understanding that the Character of the Peace Is Shaped by the Course of the War.

There are many who think that the settlement is made by the diplomats who write the peace treaty. During a war this error provides an agreeable escape from its grim realities. For when we accept this error we feel that we can think about "the peace," ignoring the deplorable war which precedes it. This is, I think, the great popular illusion both about the Versailles settlement of 1919 and about what is to be the settlement which ends this war.

To get rid of this illusion is perhaps to begin to begin to prepare to think about peace.

Builders Hit 3,124 for New All Star Record; Star Team Gets Office Honors.

Marion Builders & Supply Co. bowlers posted a new record by bombarding the sticks for a 3,124 total, 41 pins over the previous mark, in Tuesday night All Star league matches. The Gunder Funeral Home, turning in a 1,087 round, was a single pin short of the record made a month ago by the Builders. Bob Shoemaker, Gunder lead-off man, had a double-century series, 210-278-202 for a 690. His 278 matched the current record turned in by B. Shirk.

Leo Oberlander's 210 game was the only honor score to escape The Marion Star entry in Home league matches. A 570 series by Marvin Thomas paced The Stars to top team counts of 912 and 2,487, giving them two of three games against the league-leading Lions Club.

BUCYRUS POOL PLAN REJECTED

Council Defeats Proposal To Put Issue Before Voters in May.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Feb. 21 — Bucyrus city council Tuesday night considered two major issues, rejecting one and giving tentative approval to the second.

Council turned thumbs down on a resolution designed to place before the voters at the May primary the swimming pool bond issue. The resolution provided that the pool be located on the site adjoining Harmon playground. No estimated amount to be expended for the project was stated in the legislation.

Council approved a blanket WPA project providing for replacement of the city's water mains and repairs to water lines and the city's sanitary sewer system and grading and improvements at the city hospital, Harmon playground, city sewage treatment grounds and Aumiller park. The project was approved with the understanding that all or any part of the project could be rejected later by council after WPA approval has been given. Members of the finance committee were instructed to meet with the city auditor to determine what money would be available for proceeding with the projects.

In rejecting the swimming pool resolution, Councilman Harry Carle, chairman of the finance committee, assured council that another similar resolution would be presented at the next meeting.

Action on the resolution was taken after council had heard remarks in favor of and against the proposed swimming pool site by interested citizens. J. W. Loomis, former president of council, expressed himself as opposing the northern site and pointed out the advantages of the Aumiller park site.

Councilman Walter Michael remarked that the controversy over a site for the proposed pool had defeated the project two years ago.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Manages To Ease Mary's Fears About Rehearsal.

AT MARY'S despairing cry I tightened my arms around her and let her weep for a few seconds, for I knew the relief of tears was what she needed after the tension under which she had been laboring. Then I struck with the surest weapon I had for restoring her to composure.

"Olina will be back here in a minute to summon me," I said. "Her mother wishes to see me as well as your father-in-law. I only sent Olina so that I could have a word with you. But you mustn't let her see you this way."

She straightened and stiffened as if she had been spurred.

"Not for a million dollars," she said tensely. "I'll run up the back stairs to my room. But tell me quickly, don't you agree with me about dear old Dad?"

"No, I don't," I said mendaciously, for my heart was heavy with foreboding.

"Didn't you see that devilish, mocking glint in his eyes when he was talking about my rendition?" she asked.

Suspicions Borne Out

"Yes, I saw it," I answered, "but that only means what we have suspected all along, that he purposely drilled you in that technically correct but lifeless rendition so that he could take the role away from you at the first rehearsal. But I still cling to my statement that he will not dare stifle his artistic conscience by taking you out of the role after he has heard you play it in our way."

"I hope you're right," Mary said, listlessly, "but something in here"—she put her hand with an unconscious dramatic gesture to her heart—"tells me that tomorrow I'm going to be an awful flop, and a disgrace to you."

"I'll attend to your case with a hickory switch when I get through with seeing Olga and your father-in-law," I told her with mock severity. "Now you go directly to the nursery, ask Aunt Katharine for a sedative—tell her I sent you—then go to your room, take the sedative, undress and get into bed. I'll have your lunch sent up if you're awake, but I hope you'll be asleep. Count sheep, do anything so that you drop off for a while. Will you do all this?"

Confidence Asked

"I will obey to the letter," she promised with a wan smile, and I clapped her on the shoulder encouragingly. I did not dare risk another emotional breakdown by offering her the sympathy of a kiss or embrace.

"Look here!" I said. "I'm going to put that over tomorrow if you don't let me down by getting jittery. Please show a little confidence in me!"

Purposely I injected a wounded note into my voice, and Mary swung back to me with face aflame.

"Oh! please!" she pleaded "Don't take it that way! I do have confidence in you. And I won't let you down, I promise you!"

"All right, Darling," I said, smiling at her. "See that you don't! And now run, if you don't want to meet Olina. Go into my little study and wait until you hear her come in here. I'll hold her in conversation until you have a chance to get away."

"I'm already gone," she said and vanished through the door leading to my study. She had been gone but a few seconds before Olina entered the room.

"Maman wishes to know if you will please come up to her room," she said.

"Of course," I said, rising. "I will go at once. But first, I want you to know, Olina, that I do congratulate you heartily on your success this morning."

"Thank you," she said in her pretty foreign way. Then she hesitated oddly.

"Do you mind," she said at last, "if I ask you a question about the difference between the way I'm reading my lines and the way Mary's reading hers?"

WAR TO BRING CHANGE IN STYLES FOR WOMEN

New Flapper Era Coming, Expert Predicts.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Feb 21—You may look for short skirts, boyish boobs flat bosoms and snake hips in 1941

A new flapper era is approaching the Ohio Hairdressers' guild was told today by Lura de Gez, New York fashion authority and lecturer.

She claimed it on the European war.

Flapper fashioners are the inevitable result of war," Miss de Gez said "Frills and furbelows and ultra femininity of every sort are out of keeping in wartime, even when the war is 3,000 miles away Paris is the first to go, and we are already in a fashion trend toward shorter, more boyish coiffures

She predicted that the 1941 flapper would be more restrained than hers was in the 20's however because "the continued absence of men at home will prevent the feminine extremes."

Mother Says She Killed Daughter, 'Too Good to Live'

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21—"She was too good to live . " Thus, says Police Chief Harry Bispham, did an attractive 25-year-old mother explain the slaying of her golden-haired, five-year-old daughter last Monday in a park in nearby Montebello

Mrs. Betty Hardaker, sought since the body of her eldest child, Betty, was found with a crushed skull, was taken into custody at the desert resort of Palm Springs yesterday afternoon

Police said they would ask her about a strange religious sect which her husband, Charles Hardaker, 29, informed them she had joined Officers quoted him as saying

"She told me that the cult members believed in human sacrifice She thinks God tells them to kill people"

Bispham, chief of Palm Springs police, released a statement he said she made shortly after she was found in a shack on an Indian reservation.

"I took my daughter and we went for a walk in the park she said she wanted to go to the washroom and I took her.

"At the rest room I loved her and then I raised her up real quick and hit her head as hard as I could on the sink so she wouldn't feel but one blow after I hit her head I saw a little consciousness left That seemed funny, so I slammed her on the floor and left I didn't want to have any consciousness left

"I cannot explain it or tell the reason I did it. I didn't hate her I loved her I loved her. I loved her too much, I guess. I thought she was too good to live I didn't want that man to be her father I'd rather see her dead than for the husband I had to be her father"

She told Bispham she and Hardaker had been estranged for six months arrive in Seattle Saturday. He will appear in his own pulpit next Sunday morning.

Last night's sermon was on "Unloading Responsibility," taken from the text, "And I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf," Exodus 32 24.

Dr Hastings said in part

"Moses had gone up on Mt Sinai to commune with God and in his absence Aaron, his brother, had led the people in turning to idolatry as their mode of worship. Under his directions they had taken off their bracelets and other trinkets and he had melted the metal and molded it into the form of a golden calf. The people then worshiped the calf instead of their heavenly Father, Jehovah When Moses discovered what had been been done in his absence he was indignant and asked Aaron for an explanation. The verse used as a text was Aaron's answer to Moses He suggested that whatever happened was in no way his fault. The people had given him their gold on their own initiative and he had merely cast it into the fire—and miracle like—out had come the golden calf He contended that he had nothing to do with the making of the golden image they were worshiping Aaron refused to take responsibility for the deed that he had done.

Story True Today

"It is so today! We live in an age when people refuse to take life seriously and so will not take responsibility for the things they have done to turn life into an unhappy and unhealthy experience.

"Unless we regain a sense of responsibility," said Dr. Hastings, "it is difficult to see how our nation can continue to thrive and progress No matter what happens in America it is always some one else's fault We are never to blame Our forefathers took the responsibilities for their acts, they believed in the future and the destiny of the nation, and they were ready to make sacrifices for it. Thus is not the case today.

In closing Dr Hastings said that the greatest responsibility of the people of Marion was to transmit their religious faith to others.

A chorus choir of 80 voices sang under the direction of B A. Hill of First United Brethren church In addition there was a vocal duet by Mrs Clara Campbell and Mrs C. H. Indoe Rev. P E Smoke of Calvary Evangelical church read the scripture lesson and Rev. E E Overmyer of Oakland Evangelical church offered prayer

He was convicted of violating the motor code, but the appellate division of superior court has reversed the decision.

TAFT, VANDENBERG JOIN AGAINST DEWEY

Informal Coalition Formed in Wisconsin.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—An informal coalition of Taft and Vandenberg forces was reported today to be trying to keep Thomas E. Dewey from getting a head start for the Republican presidential nomination in the Wisconsin primary April 2

Although Senator Taft of Ohio announced last Saturday that he would not enter the Wisconsin contest, first major pre-convention battle, friends said there was good reason to believe he would give quiet support to Senator Vandenberg of Michigan

The theory, they explained, is that Vandenberg appears to have a better chance to beat Dewey in Wisconsin. Taft's father, the late William Howard Taft, fought the elder LaFollette, and hence his backers entertained little hope of support from the LaFollette Progressives.

The Democratic picture, meanwhile, continued to place the third term question in the foreground

Oscar Ewing, eastern campaign manager for Paul V McNutt, said that President Roosevelt would be "almost the unanimous choice of the Democratic convention for a third term if he does not take himself out of the running"

Ewing, a New York attorney, explained that the strategy of McNutt's campaign is to line up second-choice delegates who would favor McNutt if the President eliminated himself

He made the statement here that Mr. Roosevelt would state his views shortly before the July 15 convention or wait until the delegates had acted Two members of the party who preferred anonymity said they would not be surprised to see the President let the convention nominate him, then dramatically turn it down.

STEEL RATE DECLINE SLOWS UP THIS WEEK

"Iron Age" Reports Leveling Off in Production Drop.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 — Less precipitous declines in steel operating schedules hold out hope a leveling off may come within the next few weeks, "Iron Age" said today in a weekly survey.

"This week's decline," the magazine said, "is only one and a half points to 67 per cent, which is a few points above the rate of operations that prevailed in August last just before the outbreak of the European war.

"Meanwhile, new business is not showing gains. At best the aggregate volume of incoming tonnage represents 40 to 50 per cent of capacity, while in some instances it is not that good"

"The hopes of the steel industry for a reversal of the downward trend are based primarily on preparations for the outdoor activity of spring and on export trade," the review declared.

"Foreign orders have been in good volume and will, it is expected, be greatly stimulated if the war in Europe assumes a more active phase, but buying for spring activities, which usually manifests itself by this month, has not appeared in noticeable volume, having been delayed by unfavorable weather in some areas

"A possible harbinger of spring is a better showing of fabricated structural steel, Awards of 21,700 tons and inquiries for 34,700 tons are above the average of recent weeks

"The rush to turn out airplanes has brought further large buying of machine tools Purchases of one type of equipment alone total about $500,000 and may reach $1,000,000."

Hundreds of Technicians Are Called Home by Moscow.

ISTANBUL, Feb 21—Hundreds of Russian technical experts employed in Turkish industry for many years under a Turkish-Russian agreement were ordered by the Moscow government today to return to Russia immediately.

The Russians are expected to embark on Russian ships with their families for Odessa, Russian Black sea port.

The action follows the gradual liquidation by Russia of its commercial organizations in Turkey.

The Turkish press recently has discussed the possibility of war this spring in the near east, with Russia's Caucasus oil fields a possible center of activity.

German technical experts employed here in national defense industries recently were sent home by Turkey, and the German-owned Krupp shipyards here was occupied by marines

Turkey, a non-belligerent ally of Britain and France, has been cooperating with the British and French Near Eastern armies in planning a defense of this vital region, the "back door" to Europe.

Mr. Stafford paid high tribute to the Cardington club, declaring that in his opinion it was the most outstanding in this district, No 157, which comprises roughly the northwestern part of Ohio.

The pictures are said to be the first documentary color films of China at war.

West Front Patrol Clashes Presage Fiercer Fighting

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Increasing raids and patrol clashes have been marking activities in the western theater of war in France, indicating both nervous tension and a significant curiosity about the other fellow's affairs.

They are harbingers of the not far distant spring and fighting weather. The combatants are starting early to get set for grim eventualities.

Raids are of great importance, frequently spelling the difference between victory and defeat in a major engagement. They are the blood-tests which enable the doctor to diagnose the case in hand

Frequent sorties into the enemy lines usually indicate either the raider's suspicion of his foe, or preparation for an offensive Little raids often carry the seeds of big battles in their pockets.

Purpose of Raids

The great majority of raids are for purposes of "identification" That is, the raiders are after the identification marks on the uniform of at least one man, showing what unit he belongs to. If they can take back a live prisoner, uniform and all, so much the better, for he may give valuable information But most always they leave him staring at the sky with unseeing eyes.

It's by means of such identifications of regiments and divisions that enemy concentrations are learned. It's this way.

If your raids show that a lot of additional units have just come into the enemy positions opposite you, and you know that these units were miles away only a few hours ago, then it is clear that the enemy is concentrating troops in your sector and getting ready to attack you.

Most raids are conducted by small parties under cloak of night with only the stars for light—and the less the better. In absolute silence they slip through the barbed-wire entanglements of no-man's land and head for the enemy line, on the hunt for patrols, guards and sentries who can be bagged without raising the whole army.

RAILROAD MEASURE IS UNDER ATTACK

Congressman Protests Bill Before Committee.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—Rep. C. Arthur Anderson, Democrat of Missouri, describes the Wheeler-Lea transportation bill as "simply a catering" to a railroad monopoly.

The bill, passed by both houses, is before a conference committee for consideration of amendments.

Anderson said in a house statement that consolidation provisions of the act would throw out of work 400,000 men and thereby in effect abrogate the railroad retirement act

"By the bill as it passed the senate," he added, "we would take away with our left hand all that we have given almost a million railroad employes with our right hand . . . we abrogate what was done in good faith We take away from them that which they have paid for with their own earnings Congress by law forced all of the employes to contribute a percentage from every pay check to pay for the retirement."

Anderson noted that the retirement act was the only social legislation affecting the rail workers since they did not benefit under the social security act.

He urged the house to insist upon retention of an amendment to permit replaced workers to retain benefits of the retirement act. He said the amendment was supported by the American Federation of Labor, the Railway Labor Executives association, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Demurrer Sustained in Four to Three Decision.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21—In a four to three decision, the supreme court today dismissed at least temporarily a suit by Hugh M. Foster of Columbus to compel the state to collect more than $1,000,000 in sales taxes which he contended chain store companies had failed to pay.

By sustaining a demurrer, the court outlawed Foster's action unless he files an amended petition presenting additional legal grounds. If it is not filed the demurrer decision will permanently settle his action.

Foster's suit was directed specifically against the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co. and the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., but also included any other companies which he claimed may have evaded paying sales taxes during 1935-36.

Judges voting to sustain the demurrer were Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt, and Judges Arthur H. Day, Edward S. Matthias and William Hart. Those voting to overrule the demurrer were Charles B. Zimmerman, Roy H. Williams and George S. Myers.

The supreme court ordered the Cuyahoga county commissioners to award McDonald-Coolidge & Co. $700,000 in bonds to finance completion of the main avenue bridge across the Cuyahoga river.

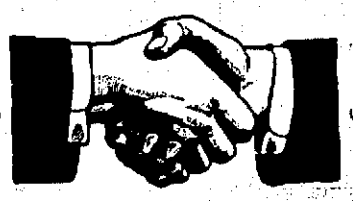
WE'VE COME A LONG WAY TOGETHER

{A WORD OF APPRECIATION TO SOHIO DEALERS}



ONE of the things we are most proud of on our 70th anniversary is that nearly 5,000 independent dealers have staked the welfare of their businesses on the name SOHIO. That is testimony of the strongest and sincerest sort.

The confidence of these independent merchants is one of the most valuable assets an oil company can have, for as owners of their own businesses these men are free to stock their tanks with any of scores of petroleum brands. Their fine service to you, and the high quality of SOHIO products, have made our gasolines and oils the most popular in the State.

Some of these SOHIO dealers have been with us since the time when ancient, pioneer autos first chugged in for gas. Others have joined us down through the years.

To the local merchants whose names are shown here, and to all the other loyal, efficient dealers throughout the State who have joined hands with us in the sale of SOHIO products, we say a sincere "Thanks." We'll do our utmost to be worthy of your loyalty.

Semi-finals in County Tournament on Tap at Shovel Tomorrow Night

Caridon-Pleasant Tilt Tops Card; Caledonia To Meet LaRue.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION county's 1940 high school basketball tournament dashes into the home stretch this week a field of eight teams still within shooting distance of being among the four eligible to enter the class B district meet at Westerville next week.

Only four, Claridon Pleasant Caledonia and LaRue are still in the running for the county tournament title. From among the quartet will be selected the champion and runner up. The other duo will share with four squads still in the consolation trials a chance to finish in third place.

Semi Finals Set

Semi-final duels of the championship flight will be staged at 9 and 10 p m tomorrow night at the Marion Steam Shovel sports arena. Claridon league pennant winner tries for its fourteenth victory against county competition in stacking up against last years tourney winner, Pleasant.

The duel looms as one of the best on this years card since the contesting clubs chased each other through a neck-and-neck league race. Claridon managed to rack up a 34-29 victory in the season-ending loop contest at Pleasant and tomorrow night at 9 will seek to repeat the performance.

In the semi-final tilt of the opposite bracket, Caledonia tickles LaRue Caledonia's record of nine league wins and two defeats gives Coach Eugene Haas boys an edge. LaRue finished in a tie for seventh with a six five record. The game is set for 10 p m. The victor meets the Claridon-Pleasant winner for the title at 9 Saturday night.

Two Are Doomed

Two more clubs are slated for elimination in the consolation division Thursday night. Green Camp sticks up against Prospect at 7 and Martel faces Agosta at 8. Green Camp dropped a first round decision to Pleasant 28-25 and then ousted Mecker 33-13. Prospect after bowing to Caledonia 27-19 edged Waldo 22-20. Prospect's league record was six-five while Green Camp won five and lost six.

Agosta on the basis of comparative scores should be favored over Martel. Agosta won six league games dropped five. Martel won but two of nine starts in tourney play. Agosta bowed before LaRue 18-12 and then defeated Morral 28-17. Martel was on the short end of a 40-13 count in a duel with Claridon and then just barely managed to edge Kirkpatrick 21-20.

Saturday's tournament schedule calls for the consolation semi finals at 1 and 2 p m with the consolation final at 8 p m and the championship game at 9.

Newcomer Boasts Galento Style of Boxing

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Feb 21—In the record books the young fellow who fights lightweight champion Lou Ambers Friday is listed as Al Davis a welterweight who hasn't been beaten in 37 bouts in his two years of professional fighting.

Over in Brownsville a part of Brooklyn they call him Bummy and know him as a very tough young lad with a punch and the kind of color a boy picks up around Brooklyn's streets. His real name is Albert Davidoff. The Bummy was tagged onto him because his pals claimed he was a bum fighter in his amateur days.

A pleasant looking boy he is having trouble getting his weight down to the 145 pounds he agreed to make for Ambers. He is a thoroughly unpleasant customer in the ring. You don't learn to be a Fancy Dan fighter on the streets of Brooklyn or in the makeshift gym where Al and his friends learned to fight with gloves and where he still trains. He's the kind of guy who lets the boxers box while he wades in until he finds a chance to knock them stiff.

In a lot of ways Bummy reminds you of Tony Galento another guy who made good the hard way. They sent him down into the New Jersey pine woods to train but he got homesick and came back to the smoky gym.

Davis never has tackled one of the big timers before unless you count Tony Canzoneri who was so far along the downgrade when they met that Al's clouts finally convinced him he should quit for good. Still he has won 22 of his 37 bouts by knockouts and has been held even only by Jack Sharkey Jr who did it twice.

The whole thing seems to add up to a rather busy evening for Ambers who usually isn't as successful in these non title bouts as when there's a championship at stake. Lou is favored at 5 to 8 mostly because of his greater speed and experience.

BOSTON, Feb. 21—A waiting attitude predominated in the Boston wool market today. Users were showing no interest in greasy combing domestic wools except for specialties such as low quarter-bloods or for an occasion very small quantity of some grade to piece out stock for immediate needs. These needs were restricted to a very few users. Despite the lack of demand, holders of territory wools were maintaining quotations at last week's levels. Combing three-eighths territory wool, which is currently one of the most plentiful grades of domestic wools on this market, was quoted fairly firmly at 30-32 cents, scoured basis.

STOCKS FIGHT TO GAIN GROUND

Price Trends Uneven as Market Follows Irregular Course Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—Stocks labored futilely today to emerge from a slough of uneven price trends.

With action pretty much bogged down toward the fourth hour, fractional losses seemed to outweigh similar gains among the leaders, but the brisk advance of yesterday's late dealings was generally held.

On the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Johns-Manville and Chrysler. Among the more resistant were Allied Chemical, United Drug, Hall Printing, Harvester, American Telephone and Westinghouse.

Bond trends paralleled those of stocks. Wheat at Chicago made another good gain and most of the other commodities worked higher.

Moving upward in the curb were Royal typewriter, American Meter and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Lower were Sherwin Williams, Gulf Oil and American Cyanamid "B."

To the bad weather was attributed much of the unseasonal decline in freight car loadings, sending the figure down to around 608,000 cars in the week ending Feb. 17, according to early estimates.

WAVE OF BUYING SWEEPS WHEAT UP

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 — Another wave of buying swept wheat prices upward more than two cents a bushel today, to within fractions of the peaks reached yesterday. Just before the close, however, about a cent of this gain was lost as a result of profit taking.

Buying was associated with reports of improved flour business, Canadian export sales and war news from Europe, the most alarming of which was the Russian bombing raid on a Swedish frontier village.
